

If You're Lucky Enough To Be Irish

A close-up photograph of a map of Ireland. A red pushpin is stuck into the map, its point resting on the city of Dublin. The map shows various Irish cities and towns, including Edenderry, Kildare, Naas, Wicklow, and Bray. The text 'Dublin (Baile Atha Cliath)' is clearly visible. The map is green and yellow, with red lines indicating roads or boundaries.

Terminology

An aerial photograph of a large, multi-story stone castle in a state of ruin. The castle features several towers with crenellated tops and is heavily overgrown with green ivy and other climbing plants. It sits in a vast, rolling green landscape dotted with trees and small white buildings. In the distance, dark, forested hills rise under a sky filled with heavy, grey clouds. A few cows are visible grazing in a field to the right of the castle.

Screen
Capture

A stylized illustration of a laptop computer, shown from a three-quarter perspective. The laptop is dark blue or black with a lighter blue hinge and base. The screen is black and tilted back. The keyboard is black with light blue keys. There are two yellow dots above the keyboard, likely representing indicator lights. The touchpad is black with two curved lines above it, and there is a yellow dot to its right. The laptop is open and facing towards the viewer.
