Question Of The Week January 9, 2019

Dear Valued Customer,

If you live on the Treasure Coast, we hope you'll join us for our seminar this Saturday. All the details are below.

We've been getting some good feedback about our blog. Some people tell us they're learning things for the first time and others have said that we're refreshing their memories about things they have forgotten. I hope you'll join a growing number of people who are reading our blog every day.

REMINDER: Microsoft and/or Apple will NEVER call you out of the blue, they will NEVER cause a window to appear on your device warning you that it's infected and that you should not turn it off or you'll lose everything. These are SCAMS.

We hope you have a great week.

John

Question of the Week

Question: "I've been hearing about something called CES. What is it?"

Answer:

Yes, CES has been in the news this week! The acronym CES stands for Consumer Electronics Show. It's a large event held in Las Vegas each year and it's in session now! This year, it runs from January 8th through the 11th.

This event, sponsored by the Consumer Technology Association, showcases all the newest electronic-related products. There are 4,750 exhibitors. Some of the company names you might recognize include: Amazon, AMD, IBM, Intel, Lenovo, Panasonic and Sony.

There are tons of new products this year, as always. Everything from robots that will deliver packages to 5G cell phone networks. If you want to learn more, be sure to check our blog in the next few days as we'll be talking about some of these new items. Also, if you want to visit the CES site, click on the button below. If you'd like to watch some of the action, click on the Live Stream button below to have a look. Remember, though, they are on Pacific time so that will make a difference as to when you can watch the live streaming.

Get ready for a whole cornucopia of new electronic products!
